

Call for Editors

TRIALOG – A Journal for Planning and Building in a Global Context

TRIALOG is a journal produced for and by researchers and practitioners in the fields of architecture, urban and regional planning, geography, sociology, anthropology, economics, and their many interfaces.

TRIALOG is published on a quarterly basis by Trialog e.V., a registered non-profit association. For 38 years, the journal has provided a platform for the review of relevant research and the exchange of professional experiences, contributing towards sustainable urban development.

Editorial teams are formed by the proponents of topics in consultation with the Executive Board. The editorial team is responsible for selecting the papers, the reviewers and for organizing the review process. Contributions are collected through open calls for papers. Academic contributions undergo a double-blind review. In consultation with the Executive Board, the editorial team also coordinates proofreading and layout for print. The work is on honorary appointment and will not be compensated.

TRIALOG is offering the opportunity to submit suggestions for topics of thematic issues and looks for volunteers willing to take responsibility as (co-)editors of some of its forthcoming journals.

Interested parties are invited to send an email with their suggestions and professional profile to the Coordinating Editor of TRIALOG Journal at editor@trialog-journal.de.

We look forward to hearing from you!
